

The report of the committee on legislation covers nearly forty pages of the Journal of the proceedings of the New York state senate for 1910. This

Grange Co-operation.

"Every trade and nearly every occupation has its union, the object to advance and protect the interests of its members; to do, on far as possible, the minimum price they shall receive for what they have to sell—their labor—and also to maintain the laws of inconsider 10 days' work, and why should not the farmers—and there are many more people in this country engaged in farming than in any other one industry—protect themselves in a somewhat similar manner? The farmers have an organization through which they can do this if they will, the Grange, and its declaration of purposes states plainly: "We propose meeting together, talking together, working together, buying together, selling together."

most, as occasion may require.' But is the grange living up to this policy? Let each answer this question for himself."

—

Successful Grange Rallies.
State Master Hall of Michigan summarizes a couple for a successful grange rally.

MAJESTY HILL, "who are anxious to make a success of such a gathering they can arrange all the enthusiasm necessary if they will." His plan is that each of the six ask each of a list of persons agreed upon to attend. Any one who has the same thing per-recommended to him within a short time-

by his reputable people will begin to think that thing amounts to something.

In inviting these people to join the garage movement tell them something of its leading departments now in operation—namely, co-operative trade, constructive film, co-ops and life

Sanctured Alcohol Plant.

The first denatured alcohol plant to be built west of the Mississippi has been located at Miraflores, Ia. It will cost $140,000, and will have a capacity when operated night and day of 2,000 gallons of alcohol and will require 3,300 bushels of corn daily. A force of twenty men, including four experienced mechanics, will be required.

this may be an object lesson to other sections. The manufacture of denatured alcohol has not progressed as rapidly as it was expected to, but if this plant is successful in its operation it will provide a new and larger market for corn. It is believed that the sides corn can be used, such as peas, beans, fruits and some vegetables—in fact, almost any product which contains starch—it will afford a ready market for many things that now go to waste on the farm.

National Secretary in Politics.

The National stockman has this to say about Secretary Freeman's aspirations to the Ohio legislature:

"Brother C. M. Freeman, secretary of the national grange, at the recent primary was nominated as the Republican candidate for representative to the legislature, receiving the highest vote cast for any candidate and over extended congratulations to the voters of Milam county upon this opportunity of securing representation in the general assembly that will reflect great credit upon the county. If elected, as he expects to be, he will endeavor to be

...and, of course, the lawmaking branch of the state government that will mean much to it is the withdrawal and immediate status of present legislation and the important changes contemplated in the next few years."

A Large Forces Meeting.

Fifteen hundred geese from Cayuga county, N. Y., accompanied by

is in-all that was organ-per-no of

er of Agriculture H. A. Pearson, the following speakers also participating: H. J. Weaver, acting dean of the college; F. N. Godfrey, W. N. Giles and E. J. Lowell, master, secretary and lecturer, respectively, of the New York state grange.

The First Regulation,
Hon. B. Walker McKee of Maine.

seals lectures, in authority for the statement that the first resolution ever spread upon the national grange record was one asking for better education for the people.

Professor W. J. Hart, the dairy judge botanist of the Michigan Agricultural Farmers must learn to co-operate.

